

About the trainer

Anas Younes is an accomplished Theatre practitioner and cultural activist, possessing a diverse skill set that spans drama, literature, theatre studies, and Management. A graduate of AUL University with an additional MA in theatre studies from USJ, Anas is currently pursuing his second Master's degree in Cultural Policy and Management at the University of Groningen. His professional trajectory is marked by a steadfast commitment to non-profit organization governance, program development, innovative project design, and proficient management and administration of NGOs and CSOs.

With a particular emphasis on civil society projects and programs, Anas demonstrates expertise in fundraising, proposal writing, and strategic monitoring and evaluation, contributing significantly to the intersection of civil society, politics, and culture. His multifaceted skills make him a valuable asset in shaping and implementing impactful cultural initiatives within the realm of NGOs and CSOs.